FARM--YARD SCRAPS.

Don't neglect manuring.

Keep your manure under cover.

Milking and talking are impossible.

Attend your stock, now, more than ever.

Farmers keep your stock well fed if you don't want to sustain a loss in the spring.

Clean out your fence rows by grubbing up all bushes and briars and cutting down all trees whose shade injures the adjacent soil.

See that all needful repairs are made to your farm implements as are to be brought into use during the spring operations.

Feed your hogs regularly. Keep their sleeping apartments comfortable and dry, and supply the pens occasionally with fresh litter to be worked up into manure.

Attend early to the preparation of seed beds for cabbage so that if any injury happen to the young plants, another seeding may take place in time for the plants to be picked out for open field planting at the proper season.

Clay soils or soils in which clay predominates, it would be injudicious to plough whilst they are at all wet, as they will clod badly under such circumstances—when, however, clay or partly clay soils crumble in the hands they may be ploughed to advantage.

February is frequently an excellent month for seeding down to clover and orchard grass in fields that are in winter grain. These seeds may either be sowed on the snow—if there should happen to be any—or if the frost is out of the ground, the seed may be sown among the grain and lightly harrowed in following immediately with the roller. Sow not less than 12 lbs of clover to the acre.

A first class feed cutter should be found in every farmer's barn. The cost is but small compared with its usefulness. The saving of food by its use will soon pay for it; the time and labor of using it is well spent, and the result will be seen both in the saving of food and in the improved condition of the stock.

Hay, straw, and corn fodder all should be cut before being fed. Feed in troughs, never on the ground.—Am. Stock. Jour.

☞ Our farmers would do well to take a hint from the Journal, as he knows the value of cutting feed for stock, all will admit that it is economy. The best cutter can be procured in this town, at living rates. O. S. Cooley, is putting them up all right call on him and see the machine. This is a Southern cutter, and no humbug.

Sore Mouth in Cattle.—A correspondent in Arlington county, Mo., writes that a disease is there prevalent called Black-tongue, Sore-tongue and Sore-mouth. Several of his neighbors have lost cattle. The symptoms described are foaming at the mouth, and inability to eat. Our friends of the Veterinary College advise a weak solution of carbolic acid—say 1 to 5 drops to the ounce of water—washing the mouth every few hours, allowing a little to be swallowed, and following this with mild tonics and food that will not irritate the mouth. Fluid preparations of gentian and iron in small doses, given with the feed, is a good tonic; for food give a warm gruel of oil meal or wheaten flour.

Agriculturist.

Are we drawing our stable manure out upon our fields during the winter, or are we neglecting it until work in the Summer crowds us? It has been found that more strength is obtained from manure applied in the winter fresh from the stables than when applied at a later date. In all cases it should be spread as it is drawn.

We thus get clean surroundings, get work done that is always a considerable item in the farmer's expenses, and we get, indeed, all the strength of the manure?

Are our animals in comfortable quarters? or are they shivering—shivering in cold stables often as much as though out of doors? A wet stable is worse than a dry barn yard. Are our stables, then bedded? This bedding becomes a good absorber of manure. It should be sawdust, or fine shavings, or chaff, or any fine substance that will take up readily the moisture. This will go along with the manure to the fields, and will make manure, vegetable manure mixed with animal—which is generally wanted.

Are our sheep being hooked and hurt by the cows, or have they a separate, pleasant place? The poultry, no doubt, has access to everything, fouling the mows and the barn floor, and even the cattle. They are not laying many eggs; but are destroying much grain.

How is it with feeding our stock? Are we feeding often and little at a time, thus securing a clean rack and appetite, or are we feeding less often and throwing large quantities to be breathed over, and thus causing a disrelish for food and a loss of fodder.

It is not expected that we shall curry our cows, for our horses get it too seldom.

If you neglect your young stock—of all kinds—it will be a loss that can never be recovered. The stock will be comparatively small, and will never do so well.

The barn at this season requires our chief attention.—Utica Herald.

A Minister's Courtesy.

Mr. Ely used to tell a little story of a brother clergyman, Rev. Mr. Gay of Suffield, which story was a good illustration of Yankee 'cuteness.' Several similar anecdotes have appeared in print, but this is a genuine "simon-pure," I believe.

Among Mr. Gay's parishioners was a well-to-do farmer, named, we will say, Brown, who was especially generous in his free will tithes to the good minister. This farmer's errand and "chore" boy, getting big enough to take his place at the plough, a new boy was taken to service—a rough, untrained little fellow, I think from the poor-house. To him the promoted boy discoursed quite condescendingly: "You have got into a pretty nice place, I tell you; and if you behave they'll use you well, give you plenty of good victuals, a suit of Sunday clothes, winter clothes, winter schoolin" and not work you tew hard. But one thing—you will have to go on errands to the minister's pretty often, and lug big baskets of things; and the worst of it is that you'll never get nothing but thanks from the parson and his folks—not so much as a shillin' for your pains."

Johnny heard and pondered, and it happened that the very next morning he was sent to the minister's with a heavy quarter of veal, about as much as he could carry. The way was long and the weather was warm, and when he reached the parsonage he was not in the sweetest tempers. He marched into the breakfast room without knocking, or removing his hat, and setting down his basket, he said gruffly:

"Mr. Gay, Mr. Brown has sent you this here quarter of veal."

"Ah! Indeed," said the minister blandly. "I am obliged to him. Are you Mr. Brown's new boy?"

"Yes."

"Well, my lad, when you have been in his family a while longer your manners will doubtless improve."

"Why, what's the matter with my manners?" asked the boy with a look of stupid astonishment.

"Why, my son, they are a little abrupt and discourteous. Now your way of presenting Mr. Brown's present was not just what it should have been. I think I can show you, so that you will know just how to do it next time. I will personate you, and you may pretend that you are me, for a few minutes."

Saying this, the minister took up the basket, went into the entry, and closed the door. Then he knocked gently.

The boy, having seated himself in the minister's chair, and put on a grave and reverend aspect, called out, "Come in."

Entering very quietly and deferentially, though with difficulty preserving his gravity, holding hat in one hand and the basket in the other, the minister approached his small proxy, and said, with a low bow, "Mr. Brown sends his compliments, and begs that you will accept this quarter of veal, Mr. Gay."

"I am very much obliged to Mr. Brown, and to you too, my fine boy," said Johnny, with an air of the utmost seriousness; "but it seems to me that its a big load for so small a lad to carry. Just take it into the kitchen and ask Mrs. Gay to give you a quarter of a dollar."

Nobody ever enjoyed this story more than Mr. Gay, except, perhaps, Mrs. Gay, who promptly paid over the quarter to the clever little actor.

He ought to have become a great lawyer. Perhaps he did.—Independent.

A "Tricked" Woman is Killed by a "Trick" Doctor. The march of improvement and the advance of learning has not driven from the mind of the negro that superstition which has ever characterized him, and he still believes in sorcery and witheraft, a belief which has to a greater or less extent cursed every age. But an instance of this belief has recently occurred in this county, resulting fatally to the unfortunate believer. A "trick" doctor living below Enfield has recently asserted that all the blacks of that section have been tricked; a negro woman living near Enfield some two weeks ago concluded that she had been "tricked," sent for the Doctor in question, and received some medicine at his hands with which to be cured of the curse. She was cured—the next day she was a corpse, the effect of the drugs she had received at the hands of the pseudo doctor.—Roanoke News.

Peace.—The Wilmington Journal, in a very clever, kindly and liberal article, urges the editor of the Raleigh Sentinel and Charlotte Democrat to compromise all their differences, and act together in harmony to save the State "from the ruin of official depravity which is rapidly destroying our prosperity and future hopes." The Journal says: "We have no fear of compromising our political and personal integrity by uniting with honest men in behalf of our State, however much we may differ with them upon mere questions of policy or even of national politics. We want to save North Carolina first, without any compromise of principle, and then we can and will be bold enough in the expression of our national politics. We want to place pure, upright and trustworthy men in office who are identified with the State, and will use the taxes for the promotion of the general welfare, and not for personal aggrandizement.—Old North State.

Josh Billings in the Editor's Chair--His Answers to Correspondents.

Fred—you aint obliged to ask the girl's mother if you may go home with her from a party; git the girl's endorsement, and go in; it is proper enough to ask her to take your arm, but you have no right to put your arm around her waist unless you meet a bear on the road, and then you are supposed to relinquish your hold as soon as the bear gets safely by.

Whip—you are right—mules do live to a lonely age; I have known them myself to live a hundred years and not half try. You are also right about their being pigeon-footed; I have known them to kick a boy twice in a second, ten feet off.

Gertrude—Your inquiry stumps me. The more I think about it the more I cant tell. As near as I can recollect now I think I dont know. Much might be said both ways; neither may be right. Upon the whole I think that I would or wouldn't, just as I think best, or otherwise.

Plutarch—You're mistaken; the Shakers don't marry. If young Shakers fall in love they are set to weedin onion, which kures them forthwithly. I can't tell you how much it takes to join the Shakers, but I believe the expense used to be, including having your hair cut and learning to dance, about 65 dollars.

Sportsman—Your inquiry is not exactly in my line, but I haste to reply as follows, to wit: The right length to cut off a dorg's tail has never been fully discovered, but it is undobtedly somewhere back of the ears, provided you get the dorg's consent.

N. B. It isn't necessary to have the dorg's consent in writing.

"Kitty—To my own personal views in the premises, it appears that the best rat and mice exterminator is a well regulated Thomas cat; beware of base imitations; sold by the respectable druggists.

About Heated Rooms.—It is customary to put a vessel of water on a stove, to prevent the air of a room getting too dry; thus by filling the air with steam, it is rendered just as much less nutritious to the lungs and blood as if filled to that extent with the fumes from a dead carcass. This damp atmosphere has something of a steaming process on the skin, and thus renders the person extremely liable to take cold as soon as he goes forth in the open air. We want the air of a room constantly changed for pure air from without, not to fill it with the vapor of water. The only way yet known to improve the air of any room warmed by artificial heat is to open a door or window from time to time, as while the family are at the table eating their regular meals.

Desperate Case of Lynching in Illinois.—Thursday last, at Beardstown, Illinois, a man named Wilcox entered a saloon kept by Yeck & Becker, and in a squabble drew a revolver and shot Yeck dead. He then turned and fired at Becker, inflicting an ugly and dangerous wound. The murderer was arrested. On Friday Yeck was buried, and there was a large gathering at Beardstown. Just after dusk a crowd of fully five hundred gathered at the jail, entered, and seized a prisoner whom they supposed to be the murderer, got a rope around his neck, and then discovered that they had the wrong man.

In the mean time the murderer, who was in another cell and chained to the floor, was made aware of the designs of the mob. He got possession of an iron bar, and as the leaders of the mob proposed to open the cell door he warned them that he would sell his life dearly. This resolute demeanor produced a change of action, but did not defeat the purpose of the leaders. A pistol shot through the head of the murderer killed him. The body was taken out of doors and hung by the neck to a tree.

A Tragedy in a Church.—A dispatch from Piqua, Ohio, dated the thirteenth says:

While the congregation at St. Mary's Catholic church in this city were engaged in worship this morning, a young woman named Miss Mary Maher entered the church and took a seat. In a few moments thereafter she deliberately took from her pocket a pistol and shot a young man named Thos. Wise, who occupied a seat almost immediately in front of her. Wise, after being shot, arose and started towards the entry. The woman pursued him, endeavoring to shoot him a second time, but was prevented by a policeman, who arrested her. The cause of the affair is not fully known, but it appears from various reports in circulation that Wise had promised to marry her, and had since engaged himself to another, which engagement was announced in church this morning. Wise's condition is rather critical.

Franking Privilege.—I am a remarkable man for my honesty. I am a model. I may say without fear of contradiction, that I am a dragon of virtue, and yet I write you this with a gold pen that Uncle Samuel paid for, on stationery intended for the use of the over-worked and under-paid public agents, and, when done, I will fold it in an envelope from the same source, and mail under the frank of an honorable member. Now, if this can be done by a dragon of virtue without pangs of conscience, what must be the abuse on the part of the very wicked?—Don Piatt.

The Most Remarkable Father and Son.

The following is from the Carlisle (Ky.) Mercury:

A most remarkable consanguineous affection and sympathy is that of a father and son, living in the adjoining county of Fleming. The father is about forty-five years of age, and the son not yet twenty. When one has any complaint the other is similarly affected. If the father has the headache, the son has it at the same time; if one suffers with the toothache, the other also suffers with it; when one gets a cold, the other gets it also, and so it goes on through all the catalogue of ordinary complaints. But yet more remarkable still is the similarity of their appetites, temperaments and general actions. What one likes and eats, the other likes and eats; and what one dislikes and won't eat, the other dislikes and won't eat. If one becomes angry, or gloomy, or happy, to the same degree and at the same time is the other angry, or happy. They sneeze at the same time, sleep at the same time, and the same number of hours, and, the most remarkable of all, they dream at the same time, and the dream of one is the same of that of the other. We might go on and enumerate many other instances of the relationship existing between this father and son, though the above are sufficient as showing how strange and remarkable that relationship is.

Everybody has to be interviewed nowadays, either in person or by proxy, by the enterprising "gentlemen of the press." One of these press-men, it is said, unable to get at Prince Arthur, who was taking a quiet lunch at the Brevoort House in New York in company with the British Minister and Colonel Elphinstone, undertook to perform his duty to the public in the next best possible way. Accosting a colored gentleman who, napkin on arm, was leaving the Prince's room, he said:

"I believe, sir, that you have just been serving his Royal Highness?"

"Yes, sah, I have dat honor."

"You heard the conversation?"

"Yes, sah, every word."

"My dear friend, you are just the gentleman I want to see;" and he pressed the hand of the waiter, which hand was immediately seen approaching his vest pocket. "Now, my dear sir, what did the Prince say? Did he say anything about the Queen, when he heard from her?"

"He didn't say nuffin 'bout the Queen."

"Anything about the Alabama?"

"No, sah. I don't b'lieve he knows anything 'bout ole Alabama."

"Did he tell what he was going to say to President Grant?"

"No sah. Didn't mention Massa Grant's name.'

'Did he say how he liked the American people?'

'No, sah. Didn't say anything about the Americans.'

'Did he tell what he thought about New York?'

'No sah. Not a word 'bout New York.'

'Well, then, my dear fellow, what did he say? and what did they all say?'

"Well, dem, the Prince he says: 'I say, Thornton, dem oysters is jolly nice.' 'I thinks so too,' says Mass Thornton. 'Dem's my sentiments 'zactly,' says t'other gemmen; an dat's every word dey said, ou'y the Prince told me to bring a jolly lot more of 'em. Good mornin', sah.'

And that was the end of the "interview."

Scene in a Church.—A queer scene was witnessed in a Methodist church in New York on Sunday. When the clergyman arose, as usual, to deliver his morning sermon, a woman in the body of the church rose too. She informed the congregation that she had received a special telegram from heaven, in which the Lord had commissioned her to warn the people of a coming judgment, and to preach to them as did Paul of old to King Felix, on righteousness, temperance and the judgment to come. The pastor interrupted her with a rebuke for thus breaking in upon his sermon with her news from heaven. She temporarily subsided, and the reverend gentleman went on with his discourse. But no sooner had the sermon been disposed of than the woman with the nervous excitement rose again. She wanted to know, she said, if she hadn't the right to say a word for Jesus and His cause? She wanted to know if she couldn't act in accordance with the telegram she had received from heaven? She had been denied standing room on holy ground, and she would now go, but she would first strike the dust from her feet. She shook off every particle of dust accordingly, and then left the church.

The Morgan Affair of Forty Years Ago.—There is at least one gentleman in this city who knows every incident connected with the abduction and subsequent fate of Morgan the Mason. There is no mystery about the affair now. It is not improbable that the entire story will be laid bfore the public at some future day, and set at rest the speculations which the writer in Packard and many others have wasted their ingenuity upon.—N. Y. Times.

A new style of shoe has made its appearance for ladies. It is known as the "Belgrave," made of kid, open on the top, with bands of silk galoon crossed over the foot. Being novel, they will probably become popular.

Where are the Negroes.

A travelling correspondent of the Macon, Ga., Telegraph asks:

What has become of the negro? is a question asked. In travelling from one extreme of the country to the other and after much inquiry, I am safe in saying that there is not one-third of the planters in Jefferson county, who have their complement of laborers. Many are riding to and fro in search of hands daily. The general demand is for two or three, or four to make up the deficiency, but on one plantation there was a demand for forty. The larger plantations are generally better supplied than the medium or smaller ones. They love to "huddle" together in large numbers. From the meagre information that I can gather, there will be at least one-sixth less negroes in the field this year than were engaged last year within the limits of this country. Where are they gone?

The colored population will form an interesting, and, I am almost certain, a melancholy feature in the census of 1870.—They are disappearing from our midst, and no one can account for the fearful fatality among them. The increase of the race is nothing in comparison with what it was under the reign of slavery. Those vaunting philanthropists who have bartered this race for the benefit of office will have a fearful account to meet in a coming day.

A Knotty Text.—There was once an itinerant preacher in West Tennessee, who, possessing considerable natural eloquence, had gradually become possessed of the idea that he was also an extraordinary Biblical scholar. Under this delusion he would very frequently, at the close of his sermon, ask any member of the congregation who might have a "knotty text" to unravel, to speak it, and he would explain it at once, however much it might have troubled "less distinguished divines." On one occasion, in a large town, he was particularly pressing for some one to propound a text; but no one presuming to do so, he was about to sit down without an opportunity to show his learning when a chap who sat near the door, announced that he had a Bible matter of great "concern" which he desired to be enlightened upon. The preacher, quite animately, expressed his willingness and great excitement.

"What I want to know," said the outsider, "is, whether Job's turkey was a hen or a gobbler."

The expounder looked confused and the congregation tittered, as the questioner exclaimed, in a loud voice:

"I fotched him down on the fust question." From that time forward the practice of asking difficult passages was stopt.

The Sun Growing Cool.—One of the most interesting theories of modern physical science is that concerning the gradual cooling of the sun; the fact being demonstrated that if it cools at the cooling rate of water, it would, since the 6,000 years of human history have lost a heat equivalent to red hot iron. This must, of course, have affected the temperature of the earth to some extent. The sun, indeed, need not be much hotter than melted iron to send us the heat we have. The distinguished French astronomer, Arago, has shown by an application of the principles of the optics respecting the polarization of light, that the sun is not a red hot ball, but that it is surrounded, by an atmosphere of flame, through spots, in which we occasionally see the sun's dark body. The sun, then, is not incandescent, and the comets shine by light reflected from it. How the sun derives its supply of heating material will perhaps never be ascertained.

Womanly Modesty.—Man loves the mysterious. A cloudless sky, the full-blown rose, leave him unmoved, but the violet which hides its blushing beauties behind the bush, and the moon when she emerges from beneath a cloud, are to him sources of inspiration and of pleasure. Modesty is to merit what shade is to figures in painting—it gives it boldness and prominence. Nothing adds more to female beauty than modesty; it sheds around the countenance a halo of light, which is borrowed from virtue. Botanists have given to the rosy hue which tinges the cup of the white rose the name of "maiden blush." This pure and delicate hue is the only paint Christian virgins should use; it is the richest ornament. A woman without modesty is like a faded flower, which diffuses an unwholesome odor, and which the prudent gardener will throw from him. Her destiny is melancholy, for it terminates in shame and repentance. Beauty passes like the flowers of the albo, which blooms and dies in a few hours,; but modesty gives the female character charms which supply the place of transitory freshness of youth.

We see by the Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun that "there are two colored women entered at Howard University for the study of law. Their names are Charlotte E. Ray, of Maryland, and Mrs. Mary A. Cary, of Michigan." We presume these aspiring women are already deep in the elements, and we beg leave to commend to them the Comic Blackstone. It is a text book at once amusing and instructive.

Tobacco an Exhaustive Crop.

In speaking of the exhaustive effects of the tobacco plant, the Journal of Chemistry says:

"To the farmer that cultivates the plant, it proves a robber of the first magnitude. It possesses a capacity for plundering the soil greater than any other tree, shrub or plant known. The amount of constituents which it carries off can be judged of by carefully examining the ash as it accumulates upon the end of an ignited cigar. It often remains after the organic portion is moved, showing the full size and outline of rolled leaves, and to the eye apparently nothing is lost by combustion. If the wood burned in our hearths was as rich in soil constituents, we should need the services of extra servants to carry away the ashes. Every hundred pounds of the dried leaves which the soil produces robs it of at least twenty pounds of its most valuable mineral atoms.

"The comparative exhaustive effects of tobacco upon soil may be judged from the fact that fourteen tons of wheat, fifteen tons of corn, twelve tons of oats, remove no more of the principles of fertility than a single ton of tobacco."

Sometime during the year 1863—date unknown, a Confederate soldier died at "Fair View" Hospital, at Lexington, Va. His name was Wm. H. Waters. He belonged to Co. B. 34th North Carolina regiment.

This soldier had in his possession when he died, a fine Gold Hunting Case Watch, attached to a fine gold chain—the Watch and chain was supposed to be worth not less than $150 in gold; these articles were turned over to the Hospital Quartermaster, and should have been forwarded to the young man's widowed mother—according to his dying request, but this was not done. The writer of this note, who was the Surgeon in charge of the Ward in which young Waters died—recently learned where this watch is. The mother of this young man if alive, or her heirs, should claim this watch. The chain is missing, perhaps lost. A letter addressed to Col. Wm. McGlaughlin or C. M. Dodd, Esq., ex-Clerk of Fair View Hospital, Lexington, Va., for further ed to.

The Fifteenth Amendment.

Nebraska has ratified the Fifteenth Amendment of the Federal Constitution by an almost unanimous vote of her Legislature. This completes the work. The States which have ratified that amendment are as follows:

Maine,	Michigan,
New Hampshire,	Wisconsin,
Massachusetts,	Minnesota,
Rhode Island,	Iowa,
Connecticut,	Kansas,
Vermont,	Missouri,
New York,	Arkansas,
Virginia,	Georgia,
North Carolina,	Alabama,
South Carolina,	Mississippi,
Pennsylvania,	Louisiana,
Ohio,	Florida,
West, Virginia,	Nebraska,
Indiana,	Nevada,
Illinois,	Texas—30.

The States which have rejected the amendment are as follows:

AGAINST THE AMENDMENT.

New Jersey,	Kentucky,
Delaware,	California,
Maryland,	Oregon—6.

Of those voting for the amendment New York is claimed to have retracted her ratification, while Indiana's ratification is challenged, because the Democratic minority of her Legislature deserted their seats leaving less than a quorum of two-thirds of all the members elected,

But it makes no difference, for even if N. York and Indiana are both counted in the negative the amendment is still ratified, with one State to spare.

The amendment is in these words:

Art. XV., Sec. 1. The right of citizens of the U. States to vote shall not be denied or abriged by the U. S. or by any State on account of race or color, or previous condition of servitude.

Sec. 2. Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

A correspondent of the "Old North State," formerly of North Carolina, now of Missouri, thinks of his pleasant old home and thus writes: "To sum up my experience of a residence here I will frankly say that North Carolina, with her genial climate and abundance of water, wood, and clear running streams and beautiful rivers, is a far more delightful place of residence than this cold, muddy, inhospitable western climate. While breasting the midnight blast and storm, with my whiskers a mass of pendant icicles, my mind often reverts to the pleasant times I have enjoyed in the days gone by in the Old North State."

Three American Generals have entered the service of Ismael Pasha—Generals Mott, Loring and Sibley. They all three have nominally equal commands as Generals of Division; one taking the artillery, another the infantry, and the third the cavalry. It is probable that Ratheb Pasha will retain the nominal chief command of the Egyptain army.

Galloway throws Chickens at the Caswell Senator.

We extract the following from the Raleigh Sentinel, and call the special attention of Senator Stephens' loyal league constituents to this overdose of "chicken." Stephens will probably curse chicken the balance of his life, and the crowing of a rooster will probably unnerve him. (By the way we bought a rooster a few days ago that "comes up missing," but we do not charge that the honorable senator from Caswell has been prowling in these parts.) We give the extract, in Jo. Turner's inimitable style—

It will be seen from Thursday's proceedings, in the Senate, that Senator Stephens of Caswell raised a point of order on Senator Galloway, (colored.) The colored Senator being thus interrupted, said, "As the Senator from Caswell has brought his chickens in, I will yield the floor." When the Senate adjourned, Stephens took his stand in the rotunda and, as Galloway approached, demanded to know what he meant by saying he had brought "his chickens in." "D—n you," says Galloway, "Jo Turner says you stole chickens, and I believe what he said." About this time the boys outside made a noise in imitation of that of the fowl mentioned in Scripture, when Peter denied his master.

The senators parted, and thus the matter was "amicably settled;" or, to use the language of the "Code," "honorably adjusted."

About this time, Hayes, colored, passed; Galloway said to Hayes, "do you think that d—d Chicken Stephens didn't stop me to know what I meant by "bringing in his chickens?" "I told him I meant he stole chickens."—Raleigh Sentinel.

A LETTER FROM THE JUNIOR EDITOR.

OCEAN HOUSE,

Got here Thursday night. Found Biggs glad to see me. Mr. T. L. Hall, the man who established and named the GASTON HOUSE in Newbern, is now associated with Biggs, and they are now running the "OCEAN" on a grand scale; charging only two dollars a day and when you don't get your meal—you don't pay.

NORFOKK.

Visited Norfolk, Friday. Was treated like a fighting chicken by Sam. Borum of the PRINCE TOM—the finest Wholesale Liquor House and the most popular one in Norfolk. We eat roasted oysters and drank champagne at friend Borum's expense. Good luck to him for it.

MARTHA HAINES BUTT.

She is now Mrs. BENNETT. We saw her on the street. This distinguished Southern Poetess was dressed in a Mazarine blue striped Rhepp Silk, and wore a black velvet cloak. Her hair was dressed a la POMPADOUR and the balance of her person was after the order of la Grecian bende. By the way we think she is about the 44th cousin to our father. No cards. Nor "interviewing."

TREMENDOUS PRICES FOR LAND.

The lands near Norfolk sell astonishingly high. Mr. Wilson, one of the most prominent and considerable farmers anywhere around Norfolk—told us he had lately sold to a gentleman from Brooklyn, New York, 100 acres of land for $6,5005. Also that he had recently sold to a land broker a tract of land of 47½ acres at $137 00 an acre, for which he gave, in 1836, two dollars an acre. Mr. Wilson lives south of South Branch about one mile from Norfolk. A tract of land also near Norfolk on South Branch which contained three acres was recently purchased by a northern man at six thousand dollars,—two thousand an acre. It was a mill site. A lady from Utica, New York, has bought a tract of land of 87 acres, for which she paid $6,000 and she has put about seven thousand dollars of improvement upon it. She works it for a truck farm. These farmers around Norfolk have got the right cue. They cut their large farms up into small tracts, and with the money that a small tract pays them, they go to improving and building upon the land they wish to keep for themselves.

A Few Things about Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 27 1870

Sunday in Baltimore is a day of praying, singing, loafing, smoking, chatting and gadding. Just like Sunday every where else. By the majority God is only worshipped in the sometime religious emotions of the heart, when the lips breathe a short hurried prayer, and then give the devil the reins and tell him to g'lang." This is religion in this country. There are a series of funny entertainments going on in this city.

A woman spiritualist preaches to-night, (Sunday night.) Any one in the congregation proposes a subject and the "strong minded" inspired creature preaches a sermon on it. There is also a "laughing gas" entertainment, where a dentist administers the gas, and the crowd are entertained with the foolish gyrations of the victim,—a band of music playing the meanwhile,

"I WOULD LIKE TO MARRY."

It is a good chance for somebody. But it will take a tall pole to reach the precious fruit. We passed by the house of the Hon. J. M. Thomas near the Washington Monument. He has two young, beautiful and accomplished daughters, and they are just worth exactly one million dollars each. We saw one at the window. Didn't go in.

"THE OLDEST HOUSE IN TOWN."

It is on Mercer Street near light, and is one hundred and fifteen years old. The house is of wood and looks like a little old tiny woman with its little old "poke" windows, that stick out like a "shaker" bonnet. Gen. Washington—so they say—(God only knows whether it's true)—stopped in this house on one occasion.

THE DRUMMERS.

Oh the drummers! They sting you, and shake you, and bite you, (affectionately,) and tickle you, and then sting you again, and then bite you (affectionately,) and shake you and tickle you. But they hung a tough old customer the other day at the Maltby. He had come to buy goods. So he brought his fife along with him. He had no sooner reached the Maltby than a spry young "drummer" kildeed up to him and commenced work. The "ole fel" took his fife out of his pocket and remarking, "I can fife just as long as you can drum,"—he struck up "the girl I left behind me." The young drummer stood amazed and at last walked out—the "ole fel" meanwhile playing away in the piping squealing music of his fife, "diddle rum-dum, diddle, diddle, rum-dum, dum," and the crowd standing around just bellowing with laughter. They didn't bother that old man again.

A Cleaveland Man at Ruffin.

From the Junior Editor.

A gentleman named J. M. Richards who keeps the best Eating House in Cleaveland, Ohio, is now on a visit to Ruffin Station on the Piedmont road. It seems during the war that a lot of North Carolina prisoners who were paroled passed through Cleaveland. They were very hungry and called into Richard's Saloon to get something to eat—expecting and offering to pay for it. He fed them all handsomely but wouldn't charge them a cent. They gave him their names and told him if he ever come to North Carolina to call on them and just "pull the latch of the door." He says he hunted for that list, but had lost it. However he is in the old North State now—and we hope that his being there will get to the ears of these boys in time for them to give him a good old North Carolina rousing cheer and welcome. T. C. Two Democratic Conventions are being held in Raleigh at the present time. One in the Penitentiary and the other in the Capitol.—Standard.

Which one of the two are you attending? Hillsboro Recorder.

Neither. You have our prayers, however.—Standard.

Stop! if you please; or you might laud us somewhere in the neighborhood of Belzebub. S'pose you pray a little for Gen. Littlefield!

Myers has "salmon" hard to beat. Try some!—Wilmington Post.

Thank you! Reach us the dish, if you please.

No musical family can afford to be without Peters' Musical Monthly.—Wil. Post.

You are slightly mistaken, 'ole fel'! We can whistle Yankee-doodle very well without it, and could go Dixie too, variations and all, if it were not unconstitutional.

The Sentinel says Judge Read lately attended a political caucus. Did any one ever hear of Gaston, Nash, Ruffin, or Manly, bathing their robes of office in the sesspools of party politics? Why, about the time the Judge ran on both tickets for the office he now holds, he was neither flesh, fish, fowl, or good red-herring. Just the man we thought fit for the Supreme court, and we supported him. But he has gotten off the fence, and has since come forth a political gladiator! Attended a King Caucus, did he? Well, we had heard that he was anxious to be elected United States Senator. We sent him to Congress twice, (once to the U. S. House and once as Senator to the Confed. Congress,) but he failed to display talent above the small-potato species. Holden is head and shoulders the "tallest" man of the two, intellectually.

Let us Call a Convention.

What for? Why, to prune our Yankee Constitution.

To re-establish our old Judicial system, and do away with the carpet-bag system.

To limit the per diem of members of the Legislature to $4 a day.

To limit the sessions of the Legislature to sixty days, instead of forever and a day after.

To curtail the number of State officers

To reduce the number of Supreme Court Judges from five to three, as formerly, and to dispense with about one half the Super-Court Judges.

To make a clean sweep of County Commissioners and dispense with other County Officers.

To reduce the salaries of all exorbitantly paid officers.

We have, under this new Constitution, almost double the number of officers "running the State Government" that the Government requires, and their salaries are in most cases entirely too large. The Old North State will continue to be as poor as Job's turkey so long as this swarm of State officers continue to suck her life's blood with vampire ferocity.

Nor do we think it a wise policy in electing Judges by the People. Judges are men, and men only, with all the passions, prejudices and frailties of mankind. Nine of them out of ten will pander to popularity and lean to party in the administration of law. We have already witnessed party bias on the Bench by some of our Judges who are looking forward to re-election.

It may be said the Treasury is empty, and the State too poor to hold a Convention. We answer this objection by saying that the Convention can retrench enough in one year's savings to pay its cost.

EXODUS OF JAIL BIRDS.—Our county and town officials, having made arrangements with a gentleman from Arkansas, shipped on yesterday four or five negro men who had been committed to jail, for petty offences, in default of bail, &c., but all notoriously bad characters. They were perfectly willing, nay, anxious to go to work for remunerative wages in the cotton fields of Arkansas, rather than lie in Jail here. A good riddance this.—Salisbury Ex.

☞ This is a good plan, and if the officers of other counties, would follow their example, it wouldn't be long before we would see a marked change in our midst for the better.

For the Hillsborough Recorder.

THE SUPERINTENDENT OF THE PUBLIC WORKS & THE PEOPLES' PROPERTY.

Shall C. L. Harris, the present "Superintendent of public works" be allowed to assume control of the property of the State? This is a question which the people deem important. The interest which the State now owns in different works of internal improvement is about her only available means of raising a dollar with which to lighten the burdens of an over-taxed people; and it therefore becomes matter of grave consequence to them by whom and how these works are managed.

The North Carolina Rail Road is to-day the most profitable investment in which the State has an interest. On the first day of April it proposes to pay into the impoverished treasury ninety thousand dollars and on the first day of July ninety thousand more; taken in the aggregate no mean item of revenue to a depleted treasury. Superior administration of its affairs accomplished this. Would it be well just now to change an administration that has rendered so good an account of its Stewardships. The public accords to it the highest praise. For once party prejudice has been unable to find aught to censure, but on the contrary has accorded its approbation. Let legislator's consider whether they were consulting the wishes and representing the views of those whose mere agents they are when they enacted, or are those views consulted, in now permitting to stand enacted a law that may produce a change in the affairs of this great corporation. Do the circumstances under which the act was passed, by which the Superintendent of public works claims the power of exercising a controling influence in this great line of Rail Road entitle it to consideration and respect as the deliberate action of the law-making power of North Carolina? Did the members of either House, after leaving for their homes at the end of last winter session know of the existence of such an act; None but a few who for certain purposes were entrusted with the secret. A purely "ring" measure, rushed through by the combination of a few members, the title of the act only being read. This is a notorious fact and members of the legislature know it. It was done at the close of the session, when bills were passing their final readings, members anxious to get off, and everything, as is always the case under such circumstances, in a state of confusion. Should not a law thus passed be repealed; if for no other reason, to give opportunity for that reflection and deliberation its importance demands? It is an important act. It demands thought and consideration. Its very phraseology shows the inconsiderate and hasty manner in which it was rushed through. Let members have an opportunity of, at least, understanding and weighing the import of this measure. The State's interest in the many public works which she owns, in all or in part, is a matter of interest to our whole people. The State's property is their property. Now three fourths of the North Carolina Rail Road belongs to the State—to the people,—and they are satisfied with its present management. Why then change or attempt to change an administration that is everywhere and by everybody applauded?

And suppose the existing act is held not to be in conflict with the chartered rights of the North Carolina Rail Road Company, into whose hands does it consign the people's property and to whom does it virtually give its management? Why to the superintendent of public works, of course you answer. Has the official career of this officer been such, think you, as to give him a strong hold upon the confidence of the people? Have they so soon forgotten, do you suppose, the real estate transaction had with one Pryne and others in Chatham county relative to the location of the penitentiary? Hardly! I don't say Mr. Harris was guilty of fraud in this transaction, but for one who above all others should have been acting in good faith, the circumstance, viewed in its most favorable light, falls short of establishing his capability as Superintendent of public works. This too, unfortunately for him, was among the first of his official acts. The public is by no means satisfied that Mr. Harris was not paid for the part he played in this transaction. This as far as I know is the only instance in which a want of fidelity on the part of this high officer could have been turned to personal profit, and it is idle to say that his good faith is not in this instance suspected. When a man falls after a series of temptations, a victim to love of personal gain, charity is inclined to screen him with her mantle and human frailty pleads in his behalf. The legislature at its present session has shown a disposition to acknowledge and remedy in many instances the hasty and inconsiderate legislation of last winter session. By this course it has done much to reinstate itself in the confidence of the people. Legislators are but the representatives of the people and are morally bound to reflect their views. Now if this legislature believes it is the will of the people that the affairs of the North Carolina Rail Road remain undisturbed, then it is their moral duty to repeal an act calculated to produce a change. BURNING OF THE STEAMER NEW JERSEY.—This large freight boat belonging to the Bay Line of Baltimore steamers, was totally destroyed by fire on Friday night, off Sharp's Island, in Chesapeake Bay, 60 miles below Baltimore.

The particulars, as we learn them from an officer of the N. & P. R. R. Co., do not indicate any certainty with regard to the origin of the fire; but after it broke out, it was rapid and destructive—the boat with its large quantity of freight being a total loss. The captain, officers and crew escaped, our informant learned, in their boats. The most of the freight was destined for various points in North Carolina, and the loss we fear, will fall heavily upon the country merchants of that State, whose supplies were aboard.—Nor. Day Book.

OUR LEGISLATURE.—The Revenue Bill is still under consideration in the House of Representatives, with every disposition, we think, to make the taxes as low as circumstances will admit.

The House on yesterday, struck out "thirty-five cents" on every one hundred dollars in value of real and personal property in the State, and inserted "twenty-five cents."

We are pleased to learn that in the "machinery bill," the amount of exemption has been placed at three hundred dollars, as suggested by Mr. Proctor. Last year the amount was two hundred dollars.

In the Senate on yesterday, the bill in regard to change of guage on certain railways, was, after a long and desperate struggle defeated.—Standard.

AN EXCITING SCENE.

An Elephant and two Camels Attacked by Alleyators in a Florida Swamp—Terrific Battle and Death of One Camel, Two Dogs and a Colt.

Florida Correspondence of the Fort Gaines Mirror.

While John Robenson's Circus and Menagerie was performing a few days ago in Tallahassee, Fla., it was mentioned to Mr. J. F. Robinson, Jr., that he might expect some difficulty in passing through a long and dismal swamp between that place and Quincy, on account of the large number of alligators who infested the ford at this particular locality, and who are at this season of the year very ferocious, and on the watch for any unfortunate mule or horse that may become entangled in the numerous roots, quicksands and holes which abound at the ford; but he replied, as the agent had already made the arrangements for him to go through, and it was not his nature to turn back, he had nothing left but to follow, trusting to his previous good fortune in getting thus far. The result of his decision, although anticipating some difficulty, was far more serious than he anticipated.

Houston, the keeper, started with the elephant Empress, the large Bactrian camel, the beautiful Arabian white camel, a fine mare and colt, and two spotted coach dogs, to make the trip to Quincy although repeatedly warned by Mr. J. F. Robinson, Jr., not to attempt the passage of the swamp in any other than by day light. He, however, went through. Before approaching the ford, an occasional bellow or roar was heard betokening that the inhabitants of the locality had not retired for the night. The elephant would, every few steps, throw her trunk aloft, emitting at the same time a loud screech of defiance, the camels uttering low moans, while the horses almost refused to stir and stood trembling with fear, while the dogs kept up an incessant howling. Approaching the water of the ford, Houston determined upon the immediate passage through before the alligators had time to summon their crew.

Bidding the elephant enter, she stepped boldly in, at the same time lashing the water furiously with her trunk, the camels, horses and dogs following close in the rear. He had passed two-thirds of the way when a sharp yelp of pain from one of the dogs, and his sudden disappearance denoted that the swamp fiends were at work, and before he could collect his thoughts the other dog went under with a long death howl. He now began to think of his own safety, and calling to the elephant commanded her to turn, as she did. So a fearful roar was heard from the large Bactrian camel, who had at that instant been attacked. The water seemed alive with alligators.

The roaring, bellowing and screeching of elephant, camels and alligators were terrific. They would throw their ponderous jaws open and tear huge pieces of flesh from the camel, while the poor brute would utter rending groans and cries for relief. In the meantime the elephant was not idle. Ever solicitious for the welfare of her keeper and companions, she had, at the moment of seeing them safely landed upon the opposite shore, rushed back to the assistance of her friend the camel, who by this time was nearly gone, and by creating the greatest furor among her assailants, succeeded in bringing the head of the camel to the shore, that portion being all that remained of the poor animal.

In the confusion that ensued, Houston did not miss the colt until warned by a shrill scream or neigh which seemed to come from several rods below. Several times it seemed as if the colt would escape and regain the shore, so busy were the alligators in destroying each other; but just before the poor creature would reach the land, some monster, more ravenous than brave, would leave the melee, pursue and drag it back into deep water, until finally it became exhausted and fell an easy prey to the fearful reptiles, while Prof. Houston stood looking on with blanched and terrified looks. He had made the passage, but at a terrible sacrifice. He came out with an elephant, one camel and one horse. The camel was valued at $5,000, and very rare. The colt Mr. Robinson had refused $1,000 for. It will be many a long year before Mr. Houston will forget the horrors of passing through a Florida swamp at night.

The dearth of News

In this Local-ity is distressing to the printer.—The Recorder is to blame! It has shown 'evil doers' up in this section so systematically that we can't even hear of any one stealing a horse, or robbing a hen roost, or breaking into a meat-house—all's quiet along the lines. Confound it! Will no one do anything worthy of notice in the papers? We don't care if you steal a mule or the coppers off a dead blind-man's eyes, or hang yourself with a grape vine, so you furnish us with an item.

By the way, as the monkey shows, the panoramas, the Ethiopian Minstrels, Gen. Tom Thumb, the ku klux and the Old Boy, are all in the habit of 'snubbing' our old Borough, let's get up a little excitement and fun of our own: The Sheriff will "open the ball" Friday, by hanging a nigger—we propose a masquerade ball or something of the sort soon afterwards—then a dog fight—then another hanging, and so-on.

These masculine and uncouth sports over, we shall call on the ladies for something refined, lovely, sentimental and graceful, in the shape of Tableaux, Concerts, &c., &c. We believe Hillsboro' can show the prettiest and smartest girls and the most of them, of any other town bordering the N. Carolina Rail Road, and the best Select Boarding and Day School for young ladies, trundle-bed girls and Misses in the United States.

LOCALIZING

For a Country newspaper is decidedly worse than rail splitting. Indeed if 'mauling' rails would make us President like it did Abe Lincoln, we had about as lief do it—provided we we could do the mauling on the shady side of a house in very warm weather. Our Junior is 'some'—a whole team—in chasing down a local item. But he is in Baltimore! Gone off and left us the bag to hold. But never mind, we'll get even with him.

They have established in Washington College Va., a department for education in journalism, and if it proves worth a cipher, we concur with the Cincinnati Times in recommending a special professorship for instruction in Local editing. That paper very correctly observes that "the student in the local business should have a great deal of exercise on the legs each day—taught that it is not brains so much as leg talent that makes the efficient local reporter. He must learn to smell an item a long distance, as the model war-horse snuffeth the battle from afar. His fancy and imagination need to be cultivated somewhat, and his invention quickened and encouraged in order that he may have something to fall back on in case things persistently refuse to happen, for the public demands local news, remember, whether there be any or not.

The would-be local will require little instruction in regard to receiving presents of boots, hats, clothing, bottles of wine, oysters, cigars, dead-head tickets, etc. They learn that very readily. The professor can do as he pleases about advising them to accept.

"The student should be taught to miss his meals often, sit up late at night, eat all sorts of festive suppers, and sit patiently to hear long and dull speeches from after-dinner orators. He must learn not to be alarmed by threats of horse-whipping, and must be licked occasionally by the professor to accustom him to any incidents of the kind that are not improbable to occur.

"He must be taught to have no emotions of his own, to look upon all calamities with a purely professional eye, to observe and describe the convulsing humor of a popular comedian, and catch the last sigh of an expiring victim of the hangman, with the same stoical indifference. The professor of local reporting ought to hang a man occasionally in the presence of the class, in order that they may become accustomed to reporting executions.

And finally, the candidate for the 'local' chair should learn to live on a moderate income, sternly subdue all inclinations for more than the necessaries of life, and be willing to give poverty a smiling welcome, until fate or his own exertions hoists him to a higher place."

Taken Up.

A one-eyed brindle cat—supposed to be the identical feline quadruped whose mewing attracted the attention of Mr. Wm. Shakespeare. The owner is requested to come forward, prove property, pay charges for "board and medicine" and take it away, for thrice hath it mewed, and we are afraid of the thing as we can be—it looks so 'alfired' like a witch.

A Drug Store Robbed by a U. S. Soldier.

The Drug Store of Thomas Emory, of Chapel Hill, was broken into some nights ago and robbed by one of the U. States soldiers stationed at that point to prevent robberies, outrages, and to keep evil doers from stealing the College Buildings with the Faculty in 'em.

A Negro Hung by Ku Klux or Loyal Leaguettes in Graham.

It is represented to us that about 1 o'clock last Saturday night a disguised body of seventy-five or a hundred men appeared at the house of Henry Holt, colored, and entered his house, where they found not Holt but an aged negro man named —— White, officiating as husband to "Mrs." H. The intention seems to have been to hang both Holt and White, coach-makers working in copartnership, but they seem to have swaped beds if not 'families' that night, and not knowing the whereabouts of Holt they did not search for him outside of his premises. They however took White and the cord out of the bed, mounted him on a mule and hung him with the bed-cord to an oak limb in front of the Court-house door, where he was found the next morning with a card pinned to his coat containing this warning—

"Beware! you guilty parties—both white and black."

It is further represented to us that the disguised party after hanging White, rode round to the residence of Mr. Albright, Clerk of the Sup. Court, and tried to decoy or draw him out, but he very wisely declined to go out. In passing the Mayor's house he went to the door to look, but a rock was thrown against the house and he was gently admonished to withdraw as no one wished to molest him, which admonition he of course took.

It is also represented to us that White's wife at the inquest swore positively that the first man that took hold on White was a negro, and that she believes a majority if not all of them were colored. White was the generalissimo or President of the League, in command of the funds which he was in the habit of stealing or appropriating to his own use.

We likewise learn that White and Holt both shot at ku klux that visited Graham about a year ago, and that the ku klux promised to see them again for this interruption.

Now, whether this diabolical outrage was committed by ku klux or by the Loyal League (expecting ku klux to bear the blame in consequence of the promise to see these negroes again,) for embezling the funds of the League, it was a high-handed outrage against the Law, the Peace and Dignity of the State, and the perpetrators should be ferreted out and dealt with according to law.—Such deeds as this will not only prevent Northern men coming here and settling, but it will drive off desirable population, disgrace society and tarnish the escutcheon of the State. We feel proud that it did not occur in Orange. Proud of the law-abiding appearance and disposition of the people of Orange. Let her continue to respect and venerate Law and good order, without which we shall relapse into a state of barbarianism.

P. S. Two negroes have been arrested on suspicion and committed to Alamance Jail.

Warning to Boys and Unprincipled Men.

Some of you have just sense enough to know how to deface freshly painted Doors and to tear down Advertisements or Hand-Bills posted up for the Public to read. You probably think it "smart," but are you aware that there is a law to make you smarter for such low-down meanness? If it is not a penitentiary crime it ought to be made so; however, fine and imprisonment will do very well as a reward for tearing down hand-bills, &c., and you better keep a sharp look-out, or, ere you know it, the Sheriff will grab you. As to the principle of the thing, our notion is that the man or boy who, for malicious or base purposes, mutilates or destroys hand-bills that in no-wise concern him, would not hesitate to 'collar' a one-eyed sheep on Old Christmas night, while that quadruped poises on its knees.

Terrific Storm.

The Storm-King, brandishing lightning and thunder with one hand and hurling hail stones the size of bullets with the other, came riding majestically in the clouds that loomed up from the S. West last Sunday evening, shaking houses with his furious breath and leveling fences and trees here and there. He dallied over our town for about thirty minutes and proceeded East, much to the gratification of nervous folks and dumb brutes.

As if dissatisfied with his first 'roud,' he gave us another turn on the elementary 'organ' in about two hours after his first visit, but he had wasted his fury in the first round and calmed his passion considerably.

What's the matter with the Mails?

We received not more than half of our exchanges to-day. On yesterday (March 1,) we received the Raleigh Standard of the 14th February! There is a screw loose somewhere. Look sharp Postmasters, we shall cry aloud and spare not.

Let Common Sense Decide.

What is the rational mode of procedure in cases of general debility and nervous prostration Does not reason tell us that judicious stimulation is required. To resort to violent purgation in such a case is absurd as it would be to bleed a starving man. Yet it is done every day. Yes, this stupid and unphilosophical practice is continued in the teeth of the great fact that physical weakness, with all the nervous disturbances that accompany it, is most certainly and rapidly relieved by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters than by any other medicine at present known. It is true that general debility is often attended with torpidity or irregularity of the bowels, and that this sympton must not be overlooked. But while the discharge of the waste matter of the system is expedited or regulated, its vigor must be recruited. The Bitters do both. They combine aperient and anti-bilious properties, with extraordinary tonic power. Even while removing obstructions from the bowels, they tone and invigorate those organs. Through the stomach, upon which the great vegetable specific acts directly, it gives a healthy and permanent impetus to every enfeebled function. Digestion is facilitated, the faltering circulation regulated, the blood reinforced with a new accession of the alimentary principle, the nerves braced, and all the dormant powers of the system roused into healthy action; not spasmodically, as would be the case if a mere stimulant were administered, but for a continuance. It is in this way that such extraordinary changes are wrought in the condition of the feeble, emaciated and nervous invalids by the use of this wonderful corrective, alterative and tonic. Let common sense decide between such a preparation and a prostrating cathartic supplemented by a poisonous astringent like strichnine or quinia.

TRIUMPHANT!—The justly celebrated Stieff's Pianos have received Seven Gold Medals, and six first-class Premiums, at the Maryland Institute Fair, Baltimore, and at the several Southern Fairs, held in October and November, 1869; Cape Fear Agricultural Fair, held at Wilmington, N. C.; North Carolina Stated Fair Raleigh, N. C.; Lynchburg Agricultural and Mechanical Fair; Augusta County Fair; Wytheville Virginia Fair; the Fair at Rome, Ga., and Illinois.

Stieff's took first premiums over all competitors of Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York. The excellence of tone, workmanship and general finish of these Pianos are unsurpassed. Persons visiting Baltimore should not fail to examine the Pianos for themselves, at his splendid new warerooms, No 9 N. Liberty Street, Baltimore, Md.

Married,

On 23rd Feb., by Rev. W. B. Boggs, Mr. W. C. SMITH, of Hillsborough, N. C., to Miss MARTHA M. eldest daughter of Col. Hart Maxey, of Columbia, S. C.

Died,

On the morning of 14th of Feb. 1870, at the residence of her husband in the town of Graham, Mrs EMMA GRAVES, wife of Ralph H. Graves Esq., departed this life after an illness of only a few days.

Mrs. Graves was a daughter of John Taylor, Esq, deceased, who for many years was Clerk of Orange County Court. She was born in Hillsboro in the year 1816, where she lived until a few years after her marriage, which took place in the year 1850. From Hillsboro she went with her husband to Granville county, and there they resided until about one year ago, when they again changed their residence and moved to the town of Graham.

And now that her gentle spirit has winged its flight from earth, and the promptings of affection would urge a tribute to the memory of our departed friend, how vain we find the effort to describe in fitting terms the excellence of her worth. Endowed by nature with a mind of superior intelligence and quickness of apprehension, and with a heart warm, pure, and ever ready to extend its sympathy for the joys or sorrows of others, she was a woman in whose sterling character were combined all the elements to command the respect and win the love of those who approached her. Of a disposition naturally bright and cheerful, quick to discover everything agreeable in her surroundings, and ready to indulge in quiet humor or harmless jest with those who knew her well, it was not strange that many should love to call her friend, "whose presence fell like sunlight" upon all around her.

For more than twenty years a professed believer, and humble follower of the blessed Jesus, she daily illustrated the strength and purity of her faith by the sincere acquiescence and contentment with which she accepted "all the Father sent" and, though for a very long time an invalid and in constant suffering, no atmosphere of gloom visited her house or surrounded her couch of affliction, but her steadfast, faithful soul was still reflected from a countenance once smiling as it "kissed the rod." As wife and mother, let those loved ones speak of her, who have hourly noted her tender solicitude for their happiness and good, and watched her gentle ministrations in offices of love. But let them not despond in the hour of their trial, but reflect upon the lesson of faithful resignation so often taught by her, and while they remember "whom He loveth, He chasteneth," pray for grace so to follow her good example, that at the last they may meet again in that celestial land where doubtless now she wears the christian's "crown of life."

On the 29th day of December 1869, at the residence of his father in Alamance county, after a protracted illness, Capt Joshua H. Dickey in the 25th year of his age, Capt. Dickey was a gallant officer in the late confederate army—was popular in his command, and universally beloved by all his men.

He was perfectly resigned to the inexorable decree of an All-wise Providence and died "as one not without hope."

At a meeting of the Board of Trustees, and a portion of the citizens of Faucette Township, in Alamance county held on the 19th day of February 1870, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted. Resolved, that the Trustees of this Township have sustained a serious loss by the death of Capt. Joseph H. Dickey who was a faithful and indefatigable officer of said Board.

Resolved, That the citizens of this Township and of the county of Alamance, have been deprived by the death of Capt. J. H. Dickey of one of their most promising young men, his wife of a kind and affectionate husband, his parents of a dutiful son, and the community of an esteemed citizen.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the widow and parents of the deceased; and that another copy be sent to the Raleigh Sentinel Hillsboro Recorder and Christian Sun with a request that they be published.

THE NEW YEAR.

Saturday Night for 1870.

THE BEST FAMILY PAPER.

This year SATURDAY NIGHT will be even a better Family Paper than it was during the year which has just passed.

In addition to our already large list of popular and exclusive contributors, we have added the names of several immensely favorite writers, who are now engaged upon Serials for these columns.

Each number of SATURDAY NIGHT will contain at least four of the best Serial Stories ever written; from six to eight delightful Sketches; several pieces of exquisite Poetry; Editorials upon home topics and those subjects especially interesting to the family circle: Answers to Correspondents, in reference to matters of law, domestic and friendly relations, history ancient and modern, and everything connected with love, courtship, and marriage; entertaining Biographical and Historical Sketches; useful Household Receipes; a condensation of the principal Events of the Week all over the world; the best selections of Witty and Humoros Paragraphs, from original sources. In fact, SATURDAY NIGHT, during the year 1870, will be just such a paper as every family in the land will want.

Nothing will be admitted into the columns of SATURDAY NIGHT which could in the least offend the religious or political belief of any one. It is a paper free from every taint of sectarian or political bias—a paper for the people—and such it shall ever remain.

If you wish to get up a club for SATURDAY NIGHT, send us your name, and we will forward you, free of charge, a number of specimen copies of the paper, so that with them you can give your neighborhood a good canvassing.

OUR CLUB RATES.

For $10 we will send four copies for one year to one address, or each copy to a separate address; for $20 we will send eight copies to one address, or each copy to separate addresses. Getters-up of clubs of eight copies can afterwards add single copies at $2.50 each.

Money should be sent to us either by Post-Office Order or Registered Letter, so as to prevent the possibility of its loss by mail.

POETICAL.

From the Waverly Magazine.

Three Weeks after Marriage.

I don't care three and sixpence now,
For anything in life,
My days of fun are o'er, I vow,
I'm married to a wife.
I'm married to a wife, my boys,
And that by Jove! 's no joke:
I've eat the white of this world's egg,
And now I've got the yolk.

I'm sick of sending marriage cake,
And eating marriage dinners,
And all the fuss that people make
O'er newly wed beginners.
I care not now for white champagne—
I never cared for red:
Blue coats are all blue bores to me,
And Limerick gloves or kids.

Oh! when I was a bachelor
I always had some plan,
To win myself a loving wife
And be a married man,
And now that I am so at last,
My plans are at an end:
I scarcely know one thing to do—
My time I cannot spend.

Spice.

Sure way to stop a woman's mouth—Kiss it.

What was Eve created for? Adams Express Company.

'A coffin,' said an Irishman, 'is the house a man lives in when he is dead.'

The person who said that his mouth never uttered a lie, always spoke through his nose.

Why is manuscript called MS.? Because that is the state in which editors most frequently find it.

'Ain't it a sin to rob the hen-roost, Jim?'

'Ah, Bob, that's a great moral question. Hand down another pullet.'

'Father,' said a roughish boy, I hope you won't buy any more gunpowder tea for mother.'' Why not? Because every time she drinks it she blows us up.'

'Tom,' said a girl to her sweetheart, you have been paying your distresses to me long enough. It is time you make known your contentions, so as not to keep me in expense any longer.

'Is there any danger of the boa constrictor biting?'' asked a visitor; of a zoological showman.

'Not the least,' replied the showman; 'he never bites, he swallows his wittles whole.'

A country girl coming from the field was told by her cousin that she 'looked as fresh as a daisy kissed with dew.' 'Well, it wasn't any feller by that name, but it was Steve Jones that kissed me; I told him that every one in town would find it out.'

An apothecary's boy was lately sent to leave at one house a box of pills, and at another six live fowls. Confused on the way, he left the pills where the fowls should have gone, and the fowls at the pill place. The folks who received the fowls were astonished at reading the accompanying direction. 'Swallow one every two hours!'

Frenchman: 'Madame, you charge ver mooch too big price for zat room.'

Landlady: 'Oh, you know, we at the watering places must make hay while the sun shines.'

Frenchman: (indignant) 'Madame, you sall nevare make ze hay of me. You must not zink zat because all flesh is grass zat you can make hay of me.

'Where was John Rodgers burned to death?' asked a school teacher, in a commanding voice.

'Joshua knows,' said a little girl at the foot of the class.

'Well,' said the teacher, 'if Joshua knows, he may tell.'

'In the fire,' said Joshua, looking very grave and wise.

The celebrated Dr. Thynne—celebrated almost as much for his good living as for his professional skill—called one day upon a certain eccentric nobleman, whom he found sitting alone at a very nice dinner. After some time the doctor receiving no invitation to partake of it, said:

'My dear lord, if I were in your lordship's place, I should say, 'Pray, doctor, do as I am doing.'

'A thousand pardons for the omission,' cried his lordship; 'pray, then, my dear doctor, do as I am doing—go home and eat your own dinner.'

A small boy out West was assisting his father to mark sheep with paint and brush. The father would catch a sheep and say to the boy, 'Mark that.' After the job was done the boy started for his home, which was at some distance, and was overtaken by a minister on horseback, who, seeing the boy barefooted, invited him to ride behind him. After the boy was seated he began to chatecise him, thus:

'My lad, do you attend the Sabbath school?'

'No,' was the reply.

'You should attend the Sabbath school, mark that! All good children attend both church and Sabbath school, mark that?'

After many more remarks of this kind the boy replied:

'I have marked your back all over now, and it looks like thunder!''

The reverend gentleman was somewhat astonished when he examined his coat.

PLANTATION BITTERS.
This wonderful vegetable restorative is the sheet-anchor of the feeble and debilitated. As a tonic and cordial for the aged and languid it has no equal among stomachics. As a remedy for the nervous weakness to which women are especially subject, it is superseding every other stimulant. In all climates, tropical, temperate or frigid, it acts as a specific in every species of disorder which undermines the bodily strength and breaks down the animal spirits.
Wherever it is introduced it becomes a standard article—a medicinal staple. It is to-day the best and purest tonic, and the most popular medicine in the civilized world—be sure and get the genuine. Sold by all Druggists, Grocers and Country Stores.
